That night Joti could not sleep. What could he do for the equality of human beings? Caste system was deep rooted. As the lower caste people were not educated, they have accepted this mental slavery for ages. Joti therefore resolved to revolt against this mental slavery and educate the lower caste people. He became the first Indian to start a school for the untouchables as well as a girls' school in Maharashtra. We recognize him today as Mahatma Phule. What does the author highlight in this passage?
- a. Merits of caste system in India
b. Poverty of lower class people in India
c. Need for separate school for girls
d. Need for unity among different sections of people in India
- 84. Read the passage and answer the question
Joti, a gardener's son, was once invited to attend the marriage ceremony of a Brahmin friend. As he loved his friend dearly, he attended the function. One orthodox Brahmin recognized him and was annoyed at the sight of a low caste boy walking with the Brahmins in the marriage procession. Unable to contain himself, he shouted, "How dare you walk along with us? You are not our equal. Get behind! Otherwise, go away". Joti felt insulted. He left the procession and returned home. He narrated the whole incident to his father with anger in his eyes. That night Joti could not sleep. What could he do for the equality of human beings? Caste system was deep rooted. As the lower caste people were not educated, they have accepted this mental slavery for ages. Joti therefore resolved to revolt against this mental slavery and educate the lower caste people. It is not luck but labour that makes man. Luck, says an America writer, is ever waiting for something to turn up: labour with keen eyes and strong will always turns up something. Luck lies in bed and wishes the postman would bring him news of a legacy: labour turns out at six and with busy pen and ringing hammer lays the foundation of competence. Luck whines, labour watches. Luck relies on chance, labour on character.

Luck slips downwards to self-indulgence; labour strides upwards and aspires to independence. The conviction, therefore, is extending that diligence is the mother of good luck. In other words, that a man's success in life will be proportionate to his efforts, to his industry, to his attention to small things. Which one of the following words in the passage indicate that the writer does not ultimately reject the element of luck?

- a. 'Luck is ever waiting'.
- b. 'Luck whines'
- c. 'Diligence is the mother of good luck'
- d. 'Luckwishes the postman would bring him news.'

Bansilal's train was late and it reached Bombay a little after midnight. It was his first visit to the city and he did not know where to go. He thought he would go to a choultry where he would not have to pay rent, but he did not know how to find one at that hour. He asked a porter to get him a cheap room. The porter asked him for three rupees to take him to one. But Bansilal waved him away and walked out of the station. He wandered through the streets and asked a number of people, but could not find a room cheap enough for him. He sat down on a park bench to think of what he should do next. He was very tired and fell asleep on the bench. He woke up the next morning, stiff in every limb: but he smiled when realized that it was his cheapest night's lodging that he had ever had. The greatest enemy of mankind, as people have discovered, is not science but war. Science merely reflects the prevailing social forces. It is found that, when there is peace, science is constructive; when there is war, science is perverted to destructive ends. The weapons which science gives us do not necessarily cause war; they make war increasingly terrible. Till now it has brought us to the door step of doom. Our main problem, therefore, is not to curb science, but to stop war - to substitute law for force, and international government for anarchy in the relations of one nation with another. That is a job in which everybody must participate, including the scientists. According to the writer, the real enemy of mankind is not science but war, because
- science merely invents the weapons with which the war is fought
